Reminder of Farmer Grant Deadline

Northeast SARE Farmer Grant Applications Due Nov 27

Applications for the 2019 Northeast SARE Farmer grants program are due online by Tuesday, November 27, 2018 at 11:59 p.m. ET. Farmer grants are for farm business owners and managers who have innovative ideas they want to test using a field trial, on-farm demonstration, marketing initiative, or other technique. Projects should seek results other farmers can use and must have the potential to add to our region's knowledge about sustainable agriculture. Awards are capped at $15,000 and projects may address the wide range of issues that affect farming throughout the Northeast and Mid-Atlantic. Applicants must work with a technical advisor who serves in a consulting capacity. Please contact grant coordinator Carol Delaney at Carol.Delaney@uvm.edu with questions.

Visit the Northeast SARE website to apply or to learn more about the farmer grant program: <https://www.nesare.org/Grants/Get-a-Grant/Farmer-Grant/How-to-Apply>

Northeast SARE offers competitive grants and sustainable agriculture education in Connecticut, Delaware, Massachusetts, Maryland, Maine, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Vermont, West Virginia, and Washington, D.C.

Our programs are offered to all without regard to race, color, national origin, gender, religion, age, disability, political beliefs, sexual orientation, and marital or familial status. SARE is funded by USDA NIFA. USDA is an equal opportunity provider and employer.

Agricultural Water Testing Labs

The Rutgers on Farm Food Safety Website now has a map of agricultural water testing labs in New Jersey that offer FDA approved water testing methods for agricultural water.

To view the map go to <https://onfarmfoodsafety.rutgers.edu/resources/>

Changes to the Billing Process for USDA Audits

Starting October 1, 2018 USDA is changing how they bill for audits (GAP/GHP, Harmonized, Harmonized Plus+, etc.). A grower will receive two bills for the audit service – one from New Jersey Department of Agriculture and one from USDA directly. There is a form that a grower must fill out to setup an account with USDA. Contact Chris Kleinguenther at 856-839-3380 for details.

For operations that need a Global Food Safety Initiative (GFSI) audit USDA will charge a $250.00 in addition to the hours it takes to review and approve the report for all USDA audits. This fee is necessary to cover the costs of maintaining technical equivalence of the specific audit program with the “Global Food Safety Initiative”.

Ultra-Niche Crops: Creating a Business Plan Certificate Course

Is it time to pick your farm business plan back up and finish it?

We all know that failing to plan is planning to fail. With this new resource you will be confident in your ability to complete your farm business plan and look to the future.

The Ultra-Niche Crops: Creating a Business Plan certificate course will walk you through each component of a business plan and provide you with additional resources to answer your challenging questions. This 30-minute course gives you the opportunity to earn a certificate of completion which may be used for educational requirements in some farm loans.

Create your eXtension login first, then navigate to the course by clicking the course link again which will take you to the Enrollment page. To get started go to: <https://tinyurl.com/UNCCertificateCourse>

Guidance Documents Released by FDA

October 19, the U.S. Food and Drug Administration issued two draft guidance documents to help farmers and fresh-cut produce processors better understand what they need to do to meet requirements established by the FDA Food Safety Modernization Act (FSMA).

The first draft guidance entitled “Standards for the Growing, Harvesting, Packing, and Holding of Produce for Human Consumption: Guidance for Industry” to assist growers with meeting the requirements of the Produce Safety Rule under FSMA. The rule requires domestic and foreign farms to put preventive measures in place during growing, harvesting, packing and holding of their fruits and vegetables to protect against contamination. Flexibility was built into the Produce Safety Rule to accommodate growing practices that vary by region and commodity, which is reflected in this guidance through examples to demonstrate how farmers can implement the rule’s requirements in various ways.

To further assist farmers and other stakeholders, FDA has also published “At-A-Glance” overviews that highlight the key points in each chapter in the draft guidance. Both of these documents can be downloaded at <https://www.fda.gov/Food/GuidanceRegulation/GuidanceDocumentsRegulatoryInformation/ucm606284.htm>

The second draft guidance issued, “Guide to Minimize Food Safety Hazards of Fresh-cut Produce,” explains the FDA’s current thinking on how fresh-cut produce processors, such as those that prepare bagged salad mixes and fruit salad, may comply with the requirements found in the Preventive Controls for Human Food Rule under FSMA. This rule requires food processors have a food safety plan in place that includes an analysis of hazards, and preventive controls to minimize the likelihood that those hazards will contaminate the food. The guide can be found at <https://www.fda.gov/Food/GuidanceRegulation/GuidanceDocumentsRegulatoryInformation/ucm623716.htm>

Both draft guidance documents will be open for public comment for 180 days. The FDA has committed to holding four public meetings around the country at which the agency will have an opportunity to engage with stakeholders on the Produce Safety Rule draft guidance. Additional meeting specifics, including information on how to register for the meetings, is available through a Federal Register Notice, and on the FDA public meetings website.

Historical Stories About Securing Local Food in South Jersey

Jeff Quattrone

Stockton Center of Successful Aging

From the American Shad caught in the Delaware River to the Cape May Salt Oysters harvested from the Delaware Bay, and all the fields and farms in between, South Jersey has a long and storied history of producing and securing local food. Whether it was for the food markets in the growing city of Philadelphia, feeding the local population, or supplying iconic Jersey tomatoes for Campbell's Tomato Soup this project will capture some of the stories that built this history.

We're looking for generational farmers, when possible, who are willing to share their story in an interview format. Initial interviews will be conducted by students, and follow up interviews will be considered. The follow up interviews will be conducted by Jeff Quattrone, who is leading this project, is a seed saving advocate, and works to preserve and document local heirloom foods with Slow Food USA.

We welcome all types of farming, and depending on the final number of stories, a school curriculum is under consideration as the result of this project.

If you're interested in participating, or have any questions, please contact Jeff at libraryseedbank@gmail.com or 609-257-7471

Rutgers Basil Varieties Available for 2019

The new 2019 pricing for the Rutgers Downy Mildew Resistant (DMR) sweet basil (Rutgers Devotion DMR, Rutgers Obsession DMR and Rutgers Thunderstruck DMR) through VanDrunen Farm Specialty Seed has been set. The advertised price for all three varieties is $400.00/kilogram (2.2 lbs). Smaller pack sizes are available at $50.00 for 20 grams (7 ounces). If you are interested in purchasing seed contact Grant Bouwer at grant.bouwer@vandrunen.com or telephone 760-485-5805.

Updated and New Sanitizer Resources

Post-harvest sanitation can be very confusing, especially when it comes to selecting a sanitizer appropriate for use on fruit and vegetable crops and food contact surfaces. The Produce Safety Alliance has developed two resources to help produce growers and packinghouses select a sanitizer.

“Introduction to Selecting an EPA-Labeled Sanitizer Fact Sheet (October 2018)”

This document has been developed to help growers in selecting an appropriate sanitizer for their operation including key things to look for on the sanitizer's label. Go to <https://producesafetyalliance.cornell.edu/sites/producesafetyalliance.cornell.edu/files/shared/documents/Sanitizer-Factsheet.pdf>

“Labeled Sanitizers for Produce - Excel Tool (Version 2.0)”

Version 2.0 of the sanitizer spreadsheet contains several new EPA-labeled sanitizers and EPA label updates for 2018. A new 'single product lookup' page has been added, which can be used to find all relevant information on a sanitizer in a single page. The new version of the tool also contains minor formatting updates to ease navigation. A video tutorial is available to walk users through how to use the tool and all of its features. New Jersey No-Till and Cover Crop Conference

The first annual New Jersey No-Till and Cover Crop Conference will be Thursday, December, 13, 2018, at the Hark Pointe Golf Course in Washington, NJ.

The one day long conference features nationally renowned experts in the field of no-till and cover crops and cutting-edge ideas and strategies to improve the profitability and efficiency of your farm operation.

Five break-out sessions will address specific topics such as cover crop spring termination, slug mitigation, species selection, and organic no-tilling. And to top it all off – the conference includes door prizes, demonstrations, and great food. You’ll even be able to receive pesticide credits. Register online at <https://www.northjerseyrcd.org/events/nj-no-till-cover-crop-winter-conference>

2018 Penn State Golf Turf Conference

The 2018 Penn State Golf Turf Conference will provide practical information on golf course management to practitioners, industry reps, and students. The program will feature some of the best and brightest in the industry including USGA agronomists, university faculty, golf course superintendents, industry representatives, graduate students, and others.
